Subject matter experts will share the origins, customs and practices of the religions of our ancestors.

The Caribbean is home to a variety of traditional religious practices and ceremonies rooted in African traditions. These practices sustained our ancestors as they withstood the Middle Passage and the brutality of the western world. And, in many communities, they continue to provide the fortitude and strength needed to face their daily obstacles. However, while dominant religions such as Christianity, Islam, and Hinduism have found support in both public and private spaces, many of the religious and spiritual practices of our ancestors have often been demonized.

This webinar will shine a light on some of these lesser-known religions of the Caribbean that incorporates elements of indigenous African practices. Join us in this interactive discussion on the traditions and practices that link us to our African birthright.
